hair food. It feeds, nourishes. The hair stops falling, grows long and heavy, and all dandruff disappears.

"My hair was coming out terribly. I was almost afraid to comb it. But Ayer's Hair Vigor promptly stopped the falling, and also restored the natural color."

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 2, 1902.
I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groin. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maudie Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

Miss Minnie Murrell who has been the guest of Miss Viola Groves returned to her home at Marshall Wednesday morning.

H. D. Wood of Tipton, Mo., who has been looking after business matters here left for his home Wednesday morning.

Mrs. C. B. Sexton and little daughter, Mary Ellen, who have been visiting Mrs. T. B. Stramecke, returned home Saturday morning.

Miss Katherine and Evan Connell of Kansas City, came down Tuesday evening to visit their grandmother, Mrs. Evan Young.

Custer Post No. 7, G. A. R., St. Joseph, last week passed resolutions thanking Dr. J. J. Fulkerson for special attention shown G. A. R. guests during the encampment here, and ordered copies of the resolutions sent to him. This notice of Dr. Fulkerson's activity in their interest was richly deserved, and is as complimentary to Custer post as to him.

Dr. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

Dr. Price's Baking Powder supplies a pure, wholesome leavening agent, which makes the biscuit and cake of highest healthfulness at medium cost and protects the food from alum, which is the greatest dietary danger of the day.

The foremost baking powder in all the world.

NOTE.—Alum baking powders are low priced, as alum costs but two cents a pound; but alum is a corrosive poison and it renders the baking powder dangerous to use in food.

Old Men's Club.

The semi-annual meeting of the Old Men's Club of Lafayette county, was held at Central College Saturday. Owing to the bad weather only about twenty members were present. A number of invited guests, however, were there and short talks were made by Dr. G. W. Hyde, John F. Blackwell, Rev. Milford Riggs, Rev. J. W. Howell and John F. Neale. After the addresses the company adjourned to the dining room where a bountiful dinner was spread for the guests. The next meeting will be held the last Saturday in September at Corder. The members of the club desire to extend their thanks to the Lexington people for the courtesies shown them while here.

Notice!

To the farmers of Lafayette county and citizens of our neighboring villages, if you want the best "dinner" that can be served for 25c stop at the Commercial Hotel. Good parlors and waiting room. Courteous treatment. E. M. COON, Proprietor.

Shooting at Concordia.

Sunday morning, Herman Tebbenkamp, a farmer living four miles southeast of Concordia, shot and fatally wounded his wife, and then killed himself. The particulars of the trouble have not been learned, but it is thought that jealousy prompted the deed.

WANTED.—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $21.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash out of every Wednesday from head office. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed envelope. Colonial, 332 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Mass Meeting.

There will be a mass meeting of the citizens of Lexington and vicinity to consider the Haerle bridge proposition, Tuesday June 7, at 8 o'clock at the opera house. A number of speeches will be made by citizens. The terms of Mr. Haerle's proposition will be discussed, but no subscriptions will be taken up at this meeting.

Among those who came in to attend the meeting of the Old Men's Club were D. W. Wyatt, D. E. Reymann, John Keys, Judge W. C. Jackson, John Neale, George Schoelling, Turner Williamson and Washington Shelton all of Higginsville.

Chambers-Pulliam Nuptials.

From Booneville Advertiser: The marriage of Miss Nellie Noland Pulliam to Dr. James Charles Chambers was solemnized at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, June 1st, at the M. E. church, south, in the presence of a large number of friends. The church was tastefully decorated with palms and presented a very pretty appearance. Prof. A. H. Sauter played the organ accompaniment to "You", the beautiful solo by Mr. Brewster. This was followed by the bridal chorus from Logengrin by Mrs. W. A. McClanahan, Mrs. Annie C. Brant, Miss Alma Tackett, Miss Ella Thro, Mr. Brewster and Dr. R. S. Holman. Then came the inspiring strains of the wedding march as the bridal party entered the aisle. The ushers were Jas. H. Woodbridge, M. W. Muntzel, W. T. Lionberger and Nelson Leonard. They were followed by the groom, with his best man, J. G. Crenshaw of Lexington, and the bride, with Miss Louise Trigg, maid of honor. The bride carried a bouquet of La France roses, and Miss Trigg one of pink carnations. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the party, entered carriages and were driven to the Missouri Pacific station, where Dr. and Mrs. Chambers took the afternoon train for Kansas City. In the evening they were guests of honor at a dinner party at the Baltimore hotel. They will be at home at the Bonaventure hotel.

Dr. Chambers is a prominent young physician of Kansas City. His bride is a niece of Mrs. Jane Hopkins, of Booneville, and for some years has made her home with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Wettendorf. She is a charming and attractive young woman with a large circle of friends, whose esteem was evidenced by numerous useful and valuable presents.

On Monday evening Miss Louise Trigg charmingly entertained the bridal party and a few others at the hospitable home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Trigg, on Main street. The game of "42" with dominoes was played, Mrs. A. K. McIlwain the ladies' prize, a handsome jewell case, and Percival Johnson the gentlemen's, a silver mounted clothes brush. Dainty and elaborate refreshments were served, and the evening was a delightful one.

On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wettendorf entertained the bridal party and others at their home on Main Street. Choice refreshments were served.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Kent Chambers, brother of the groom, Philadelphia; Mrs. A. F. Chambers and daughter, mother and sister, Lexington; Elliott Jones, Kansas City; J. G. Crenshaw, Lexington; Mrs. Nat Leonard, Kansas City; Mrs. H. B. Chilton, sister of the bride, Minneapolis, Minn.

LAYTON'S HEALTH FOOD Baking Powder

Supplies a PURE, wholesome, leavening agent, which makes the biscuit and cake of the highest healthfulness, at the lowest possible cost, and protects the user from that violent purgative, Rochelle Salts, which is left in the bread when high priced Cream of Tartar Powders are used.

NOTE.—That deadly malady Bright's Disease is invariably due to the constant use of Cream of Tartar Baking Powders. If you need a purgative, consult your physician, don't eat it in your food. PAPERS MADE BY THE JAPS.

They Can Be Used for Wall Coverings, Meal Sacks and Tobacco Pouches.

From the bark of trees and shrubs the Japanese make scores of papers, which are far ahead of ours, says the National Geographic Magazine.

The walls of the Japanese houses are wooden frames covered with thin paper, which keeps out the wind but lets in the light, and when one compares these paper-walled "doll houses" with the gloomy bamboo cabins of the inhabitants of the island of Java or the small windowed huts of our forefathers, one realizes that, without glass and in a rainy climate, these ingenious people have solved in a remarkable way the problem of lighting their dwellings and, at least in a measure, of keeping out the cold.

Their oil papers are astonishingly cheap and durable. As a cover for his load of tea when a rain-storm overtakes him, the Japanese farmer spreads over it a tough, pliable cover of oiled paper which is almost as impervious as tarpaulin and as light as a gossamer. He has doubtless carried this cover for years, neatly packed away somewhere about his cart. The "rickshaw" coolies in the large cities wear rain mantles of this oiled paper, which cost less than 18 cents and last for a year or more with constant use.

An oiled tissue paper which is as tough as writing paper can be had at the stationers' for wrapping up delicate articles.

Grain and meal sacks are almost always made of bark paper in Japan, for it is not easily penetrated by weevils and other insects.

But perhaps the most remarkable of all the papers which find a common use in the Japanese household are the leather papers of which the tobacco pouches and pipe cases are made. They are almost as tough as French kid, so translucent that one can nearly see through them, and as pliable and soft as calfskin. The material of which they are made is as thick as cardboard, but as flexible as kid.

A RADIOGRAPHIC SURPRISE.

Unsuspected Tumors Revealed in Woman's Foot While Searching for a Needle.

Photographs are often taken with an X-ray tube in order to ascertain the exact position of a bullet, needle or some similar object which may have found its way into the tissues. Metal casts as dense a shadow as bone, while the obscuration due to flesh and skin is comparatively slight.

A Cleveland expert in that class of work was visited by the patient of another physician recently (upon the latter's recommendation) with a request that he make a radiograph of her foot. She believed that a needle had worked its way into that member. At any rate, something had caused more or less pain for years, although there was no outward sign of an injury on the sole. The picture was taken and, sure enough, there was a narrow, black line visible in it, which was not due to bone. It lay right between two bones. The needle was subsequently removed by a surgeon. However, the radiograph also revealed two other things which nobody had suspected. They were small, hard tumors adhering to the bones, and probably caused by the needle. They were taken out also. The young woman can now walk with more comfort than for several years past.

Strange Songs of Birds.

Scott, of Princeton, continuing his experiments on the songs of various species of birds, during the past year obtained some nestlings of bobolinks and red-winged blackbirds, and reared them where they could hear the songs of many other kinds of birds, but not the songs of their own species. After his birds had grown he placed competent judges of birds' songs within hearing, but not within sight of them, and asked what the birds were to whose singing they were listening. In no instance was the song recognized, and in the case of the bobolinks, in particular, an expert was wholly unable to form an opinion as to what birds were producing the music, although the singing was loud and brilliant.—Youth's Companion.

SOME GREAT SEA DISASTERS

Many Big Naval Vessels Have Gone Down with Their Hundreds of Men on Board.

Loss of the Russian flagship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, with Admiral Makaroff and an estimated strength of nearly 800 officers and men, while a severe blow to Russian prestige in the far east, is one of those catastrophes in naval warfare, says the Chicago News, to which an actual combatant is always liable, though happily their occurrence is not common. In 1759, when "Hawke did bang Monsieur Conflans" at Quiberon bay, Sir Edward Hawke ordered his pilot to lay the Royal George, of 100 guns, alongside the Soleil Royal, the French admiral's flagship. Before this could be done another French ship, La Superbe, of 70 guns, gallantly interposed, and, receiving her opponent's broadside, went down into the deep with her colors flying and 650 souls on board. Her revenge, however, came on August 28, 1782, when the Royal George sunk at harbor off Spithead in a squall.

During a great storm in 1703 12 men-of-war went down off the British coast with 1,800 men. Many lives were lost when the British warship Ajax took fire in 1807. The British warship Captain turned over in the Bay of Biscay in 1870, about 500 lives being lost. When the Sultan, the sister ship of the Captain, was fitting out at Portsmouth a grim humorist, prophesying her possible fate (happily he proved to be wrong), chalked on her side: "Will leave on Thursday with mails for the Captain."

The fate of the Italian warship Re d'Italia at the battle of Lissa, the one great fight that has as yet taken place between armored hostile fleets in European waters, should be mentioned. It was on July 20, 1866, that the Austrian Admiral Tegethoff fought Persano's fleet and the flagship Ferdinand Max sent her opponent down with 600 men on board, the Italian ironclad Palestro also blowing up, about a score of lives only being saved.

Fearful loss of life was occasioned by the ramming of the British warship Victoria in maneuvers by the Camperdown (1893), when over 350 officers and men, including Admiral Tryon, were drowned.

ABYSSINIAN WOMENS' DRESS

Get Themselves Up in Apparel That Is Picturesque and Sometimes Gorgeous.

"For downright gorgeousness there is little that can surpass a family party of Abyssinian women bound from one village to another in festival time, notably about Easter, for the Abyssinians are Christians," writes Mr. Broughton Brandenburg, describing the life of the women of Egypt in an article in Pearsons—Daughters of the Nile.

"A brilliant, bangle-adorned head-dress is bound over the brow and drawn back to fall down the shoulders. The upper part of the body is clad in a blouse of red and white literally covered with gold and silver ornaments, that are handed down from generation to generation. A short skirt in the same style comes below the knees, and the legs are encased in brilliant-colored stripes wound tightly about like putters, often beaded and spangled. The feet, usually bare, are variously adorned with toe-rings, ankle bracelets, and other ornaments."

Distinguished Dog.

A dog in England has lately been honored by the receipt of an illuminated address, in which he is informed that he is the most successful collector for the Victoria infirmary at Norwich, and is thanked by the board of managers. The dog is a five-year-old fox-terrier, named Prince. He does not wear a cup or basket or carry one in his mouth, as do most mendicant dogs, but simply sits up on his hind legs and begs. When he receives a coin he goes unbidden and deposits it in a box kept for the purpose. During 1903 he collected more than 2,000 coins. One hopes that if illness or accident ever overtake Prince there may be a warm bed for him at the infirmary, with plenty of good sirloin steak and dog-biscuits.—Youth's Companion.
